QUESTION / COMMENT	STATE RESPONSE
months in advance who the subcontractors may be for the project, presuming that we the contractor win the job. That is difficult at best because subcontractors move job to job and the predictability for the availability of that subcontractor at the time needed can be sketchy at best. What happens if we identified a subcontractor this early and then they commit to another job before bid opening time and they can't perform the work? Furthermore, this requirement ties our hands to try and find competitive bids for various trades during the timeframe the work is required to be completed. What recourse does the contractor have? Will the contractor not be allowed to bid if the potential subcontractors must be changed?	scope of work the Contractor intends to perform using subcontractors. The contractor will not, in anyway, be penalized for the qualifications of subcontractors listed and will not be bound to use those same contractors for their official bid.
2 This project is primarily roofing; however, several other trades will be involved and it is highly likely there could be 2-5 subcontractors on this job. Is this okay? (This particular paragraph (Section B.12) is restrictive and places a difficult and unnecessary burden on the General Contractor.)	It is not necessary to provide this much detail for the proposed subcontractors. Please refer to item #4 below with revisions to RFQ Attachment 6.2., Section B.12 (revisions highlighted in yellow)

3. Delete RFQ SBC Project # 361/062-01-2016 RFQ Attachment 6.2., Section B.12, in its entirety and replace with the following (changes are highlighted in yellow):

	B.12.	Provide a statement of whether the Respondent intends to use subcontractors to meet the Respondent's requirements of any contract awarded pursuant to this RFQ, and if so, detail: (a) Names of proposed subcontractors; and (b) the portion of work the subcontractor will be responsible for.
